HIDDEN AZTEC TREASURE FOUND

Twelve Burro Loads of Treasure Taken from a Cave and Shipped to the United States.

Hermosillo, Méx., Nov. 14.—A remarkable story, duly authenticated, of the discovery of hidden Aztec treasures, has just been reported to the Government authorities at Tepic by Rev. Pablo Martino, the parish priest of Yesca.

The priest makes a statement, which is concurred in by several reliable witnesses, that a party of Americans, headed by an archaeological expert who gave the name of Heverick, arrived at Yesca several weeks ago and went from that place into the mountains, accompanied by three Mexican guides.

The archaeologist obtained his bearings by means of a chart which he claimed to have copied from an Aztec stone tablet in the National Museum in the City of México. He located a vast cavern in the mountain near Yesca.

Immense stone images stood about this chamber. In one end was a handsome altar, above which burned a bright flame, supplied by natural gas from a crevice in the wall.

In a chamber adjoining this main temple was found a great store of ornaments and utensils belonging to the Aztec or some other prehistoric race.

Twelve burros were required to transport the articles taken from the cave to San Blas, where they were shipped to the mountains, accompanied by three Americans.

As such articles can not be removed from México without the consent of the Government, an investigation is in progress.

NEWSPAPERS ARE MIRRORS.

San Angelo Standard.
The newspapers of a town are like looking glasses, and you see yourselves as others see you. If your town is doing business the local paper will show it in its advertising columns, but if the merchants are scared, spiritless men, with stocks of goods all jumbled together and no business doing, the newspapers will show it by the lack of space they take. If you want to make your town a live town, the best way to do it is to keep your advertisements constantly before the public in your local paper. Who wants to settle in a dead town whose merchants are too scared to let outside people know there is any business in the town?

A carload of money recently was received at the castings department of the steel plant. The money was in three cent copper pieces, recently called in by the government and cancelled. The coins were not sufficiently different from the one cent pieces to warrant their circulation. Their cancellation reduced their value to that of copper, and it was as a carload of copper that the coins were purchased by the plant. —Monterey News.

Emerson Etheridge, who died at Dresden, Tenn., several days ago, was one of the last, if not the last, of the whigs who sat at congress. He was one of Tennessee's most powerful orators fifty years ago.

BEEES THREATENED.

Fatal Foul Brood Appears Among Them in Uvalde County.

Uvalde, Tex., Nov. 14.—State Entomologist E. Dwight Sanderson, of College Station, Tex., accompanied by his assistant, Wilmon Newell, arrived in Uvalde, yesterday in response to letters from leading bee men. A disease has appeared in an apiary near Uvalde, and killed all the bees. The State Entomologist agreed with men here in pronouncing it foul brood, a most fatal disease among bees.

There will be a meeting among bee men in Uvalde tomorrow morning to take steps to arrest the spread of foul brood.

The next legislature will be asked to pass a law favorable to the arresting of the case.

There are some $140,000 invested in bee culture in Uvalde county and any disease that threatens its destruction is of grave importance to our people.

SKETCH OF CARNEGIE.

Mr. Malcolm Canmore is not a thick and thin admirer of Andrew Carnegie. He writes of the laird of Skibo in the Boston Transcript:

Accomplishing what he has in life on the most meager of education he boldly attempted to place a university training within reach of the entire Scottish people of future generations. A man of indifferent religious convictions, he lavishes fortunes on Christian charities, Sunday schools and church organs. Avowedly democratic, he exhibited a singular fondness for men of birth and rank. A character sketch of Carnegie made up from what has been written about him would probably portray a character as unique if not so fantastic as Mr. Hyde and his other self. To some he is a tenderhearted philanthropist, oppressed by the misery and suffering with which the world is rife, intent upon using his great wealth for the amelioration of the condition of his fellow creatures. Again, he is a mighty financial octopus, a selfish monopolist and tyrannical master a very monster of greed and inhumanity.

In truth he is an elusive character, neither so black as some paint him, nor so good as others think him; certainly not the suave, kindly, head-and-shoulders-above-his-fellow-creatures individual that he himself would have the world believe. He has been so moulded by American industrialism that his personality, always strong, has lost the flexibility while retaining the inherent nature of the man and gained the rugged, steel and iron covering which is the callous of intense commercialism.

FEELINGS DAMAGED SIX CENTS.

Damage in the amount of six cents to his feelings and $100 to his reputation was allowed in the verdict of the jury in the Harvey J. Hollister libel case against the Grand Rapids Publishing company. The Democrat, published by the firm mentioned, accused Hollister of being the famous water contract scandal.

TEXAS MAY BE INCLUDED

In the Scheme of the Republicans to Cut Down Representation.

Washington, November 13.—It was announced today that as soon as possible after congress convenes next month a conference will be held between Representatives Crumpacker, Dick and Dayton and Postmaster General Payne and other members of the cabinet for the purpose of agreeing on some course of action with reference to the much talked of proposition to reduce the representation in congress of those Southern States which have "disfranchised the negroes." At this conference it will be decided whether or not to call a republican caucus to act in the premises. It will be remembered that two such caucuses were held last winter, but that no definite steps were taken. In order to escape the charge that they are trying to revive sectionalism, those responsible for the movement to hold a conference say that the matter of reducing the representation of Massachusetts, Connecticut and other Northern States in which numerous voters are disfranchised by educational clauses in the State constitutions, or in some similar manner will also be considered and that cognizance will be taken of the election frauds in Philadelphia and other cities.

It will be hard to convince those who have been keeping up with the matter that any such general application will be made of the reduction in representation idea, for it is generally understood that the whole purpose of the movement is merely to cripple the South in as many different ways as possible. Now that the president has decided to identify himself with the movement, it is realized that there will in all probability be some interesting developments during the forthcoming short session.

On account of the adoption of the poll tax amendment in Texas, it is hinted that conditions in that State may be inquired into by those who are expected to participate in the proposed conference.

Capt. Masterson of Lincoln, Neb., claims to be the oldest soldier living today in the United States. For eight years he was in the British army and was a member of the royal guards at the coronation of Queen Victoria.
